

Illinois Hospitals: Key to Jobs and the Economy

Each year, Illinois' hospitals treat more than 5 million people in their emergency rooms, provide care for more than 30 million outpatients and 1.6 million inpatients, and deliver 175,000 babies – they are truly the cornerstone of health care delivery in their communities. However, the importance of hospitals to their communities goes far beyond health care.

As major employers and purchasers of equipment, goods and services, Illinois hospitals are vital economic engines for their communities and the state. Hospitals are among the top three employers in nearly half of Illinois' counties, and collectively, they employ more than a quarter of a million Illinoisans and have a total economic impact on the state of more than $72 billion a year. Hospitals comprise one of the strongest sectors of the economy and are key to job creation and retention and to the state's economic recovery.

To ensure that hospitals are able to continue their essential role in ensuring the health and economic well-being of their communities, it is critical that Congress maintain the strong federal/state partnership to support Medicare and Medicaid. To show the economic impact of hospitals across the state, the Illinois Hospital Association has prepared the information below.

Illinois Hospitals: Key to Jobs and the Economy

Each year, Illinois' hospitals treat more than 5 million people in their emergency rooms, provide care for more than 30 million outpatients and 1.6 million inpatients, and deliver 175,000 babies – they are truly the cornerstone of health care delivery in their communities. However, the importance of hospitals to their communities goes far beyond health care.

As major employers and purchasers of equipment, goods and services, Illinois hospitals are vital economic engines for their communities and the state. Hospitals are among the top three employers in nearly half of Illinois' counties, and collectively, they employ more than a quarter of a million Illinoisans and have a total economic impact on the state of more than $72 billion a year. Hospitals comprise one of the strongest sectors of the economy and are key to job creation and retention and to the state's economic recovery.

To ensure that hospitals are able to continue their essential role in ensuring the health and economic well-being of their communities, it is critical that Congress maintain the strong federal/state partnership to support Medicare and Medicaid. To show the economic impact of hospitals in your Congressional District, the Illinois Hospital Association has prepared the information below.
